

Advice on supporting
your child's learning.

PARKHALL
INTEGRATED COLLEGE

Your role as a parent in supporting learning.

- Having a positive relationship with the school. Teachers and parents want exactly the same thing and that is the best for your child.
- Provide your child with a space where they can complete their homework. This can be difficult but if a pupil has a quiet space with the resources they need, this can reduce stress when it comes to homework or revision time.
- Try to create a routine for your child in the afternoons/evenings. A set time for homework/revision where possible helps pupils to develop their time management skills.

- It can be difficult to get your child to talk about their day, especially as they get older. Keep an eye on their planner and ask specific questions about subjects or events they may have been part of that day.
- Check on assignments, homeworks, projects and exam dates. This information will be found in the pupil planners, study guides, google classroom and on this website.

Ask questions about the school day.

Pupils can find it difficult to motivate themselves to revise and here's how you can help;

- Remind your child of past achievements and encourage them to believe in themselves.
- Ask about their ideas on how they plan to study.
- Help by providing a study space and with time management.
- Ask your child how you can help, they may already have a role for you.

Preparing for Revision at home.

- Pupils in Parkhall Integrated college will receive a study skills booklet and a workshop outlining how to use these skills.
- Pupils are encouraged initially to use a range of skills to see which learning technique suits them best.
- You will have access to these study skills booklets through your child and they will be made available on this website.
- Skills and techniques will also be available on this site along with the opportunity to discuss techniques with teachers and other parents.

What if you don't know how to help your child revise?

Maintaining motivation at home.

Pupils will have discussed target grades with their teachers. Make yourself familiar with the target grades set for your child in each subject and focus your child towards these grades.

For older pupils, have a discussion about what they want to do after school? Do they want to complete sixth form? A career goal is an excellent motivator.

If you feel a reward will benefit your child, perhaps use a measured reward as an incentive to do well.
